Background

- Nexteam Group (Nexteam) is focused on the design, manufacture and support of mainly metal parts in the Aerospace & Defense industry
- Nexteam is controlled by the management team / founding families with minority stakes held by Tikehau and ACE
- Nexteam has 1,500 employees across 11 production sites in France, Poland, Romania and Morocco
- Ventana Group (Ventana) designs and manufactures high value-added metal components and assemblies across its three divisions (foundry, mechanics and mechanical welding) for the Aerospace, Defense and Energy industries
- Ventana is owned by Ernst Lemberger, Gérard Russo and Guy Kilhoffer
- Ventana has 900 employees across 11 production sites in France, Sweden, Austria, Portugal and Tunisia

Process

- DC Advisory (DC) acted as the exclusive advisor to Nexteam on its merger with

Ventana

Outcome

- This transaction will create a leading industrial player in the Aerospace & Defense industry
- The combined group is expected to reach its 2019 pre-crisis level of €315m revenue in 2023-24, with 2,400 employees across 22 production sites in eight countries (France, Portugal, Austria, Sweden, Poland, Romania, Morocco and Tunisia)
- This transaction demonstrates DC's extensive expertise in the Aerospace & Defense industry

"Our capital strengthening is a guarantee for the teams of the new entity of our confidence in the future. With this merger between two solid market players, which combines complementary industrial skills and a common vision of the role of innovation in our businesses, we intend to play a full part in the economic recovery of the sector. "

Ludovic Asquini
Chairman, Nexteam Group
