Nigel Tse biography

ABOUT

Nigel is part of our DC Advisory US team, where he leads the firm’s Human Capital Management group. Nigel has almost 20 years of technology investment banking experience, and has spent his entire career at middle-market investment banks providing M&A and capital raising advice. In addition to the Human Capital Management sector, Nigel also spends a lot of time in the Customer Interaction Management software sector.

Previous roles have included time with Seven Hills, a middle-market investment bank based in San Francisco, prior to which he held positions at China Technology Venture Management, a cross-border venture capital firm, and Broadview, a middle-market technology-focused investment bank. Nigel has a B.S. in Industrial Engineering from Stanford University.

Nigel says, “My entire career has been spent on different platforms advising technology companies at critical junctures in their lifecycle, either raising a large growth round or in anticipation of an exit. The DC Advisory platform is truly unique in its commitment to deep domain expertise combined with its global reach across the US, Europe, and APAC.”
